BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

OF

THE WILLIAMS (WILLIAM) FAMILY

HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF THE

WILLIAMS (WILLIAM) FAMILY

Origin Of Name And Early History

1735833

The surname Williams is derived from the Baptismal form meaning, " The son of William". It has long been recognized as one of the commonest and most distinctive of Welsh surnames. One source states that the surname Williams came into England with William the Conqueror as a deviation from the Norman-French Guillaume, the French form of William. It was gradually adopted by many Saxons and Welshmen. The name William was originally a favorite epithet for Warrior and signified one of warlike resolution. The name has spread rapidly especially in Wales. Another source claims that the surname William is derived from the Welsh "Gwyllyn" meaning "Sentinel" and has been in use since 1086.

Williams has been in use as a surname for almost 500 years. It is claimed that Morgan Williams of Glamorganshire, Wales was the first to assume the surname Williams. He was the son of William, the son of Evan, the son of Thomas, descended from Brutus (1100 B. C.) , first King of Britain. From Brutus were descended the Royal Houses of the Stuarts and Tudors and the present rulers of England. According to Carlyle Oliver Cromwell was descended from Morgan Williams whose family had attained considerable wealth and reputation and who married a sister of the Earl of Essex. On the other hand the Encyclopedia Americana states that Cromwell is descended from Richard Williams, who assumed the name Cromwell from his maternal uncle, Thomas Cromwell (Sec'y Of State to Henry VIII).

In the following record to provide for greater clarity, the Williams Family will be grouped according to the various individual branches established in America by the emigrants from England.

Descendants Of Roger Williams Of Providence, Rhode Island

Various histories have written of the journeys of Roger Williams, who traveled to Salem, Plymouth and back to Salem, thence to Seekonk, Mass and finally settling in Providence, R. I in the effort to find the religious freedom denied him in Mass.

I. Roger Williams (1607-March 1684) Pioneer of Religious Liberty and Founder of Providence, R. I. was born in Wales, England, the son of James (a merchant tailor of London) and his wife Alice Pemberton. He emigrated to America on the ship "Lyon", arriving in New England Feb. 5, 1631. Roger was the first to build up and organize a political community with absolute religious liberty as its chief cornerstone. His ministerial labors in Salem had been in conflict with the Clergy and the Mass. Court. Roger and his small band of followers selected "Providence" as a site beyond the jurisdiction of the Plymouth and Mass colonies and in gratitude for "God's merciful Providence to them in their distress". He married Mary Barnard Dec. 15, 1629 in England. Issue: Mary; Freeborn; Providence; Mercy; Daniel; Joseph.

Explanation And Description Of The Coat*of-Arms

Or - refers to the color gold or yellow

Rampant - is applied to animals when in an erect position, standing on left hind-leg and having both fore-legs raised, the right above the left.

Gules - represents the color red.

Chief - refers to the emblem occupying the upper third part of the shield.

Azure - refers to the color blue.

Rising - is applied to birds when about to fly.

Argent - refers to the color silver or white denoting innocence or purity.

Proper - refers to any figure or object when tintured in its natural color.

Dexter - means the right hand side, that is, to the left of the spectator.

Mound - is derived from Mundus - meaning the world. In heraldry it is a ball or globe encircled with a horizontal band richly jewelled, from the upper edge of which springs a semi-circular band also jewelled and having on top a cross. It is an emblem of royalty (signifying the Royal Descent of the Williams Family). It forms a part of the Royal Crown.

Courant - means running at full speed.

Sable - refers to the color black.

Cornish Chough - refers to a crow like bird, with red beak and legs, found in Cornwall.

Border - refers to a band one-fifth of the shield which it entirely surrounds.

Engrailed - is applied to one of the partition or dividing lines, also to the indentations along the border so that the teeth like points are outwards.

1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to determine what consumers want and what problems they are trying to solve. Once a need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept for a product that addresses that need. This often involves brainstorming and sketching out ideas for the product's design and features.

2. After a concept has been developed, the next step is to create a prototype. A prototype is a small-scale model of the product that allows designers to test and refine their ideas. This can be done using a variety of materials and techniques, depending on the nature of the product. Prototyping is an important part of the design process because it allows designers to see how their ideas will look and function in the real world.

3. Once a prototype has been created, the next step is to conduct a feasibility study. This involves evaluating the technical, financial, and market viability of the product. A feasibility study can help designers determine whether their product is worth pursuing and what resources will be needed to bring it to market. This step is crucial for ensuring that the product is not only technically feasible but also financially and commercially viable.

4. After a feasibility study has been completed, the next step is to develop a business plan. A business plan is a document that outlines the company's goals, strategies, and financial projections. It is a key tool for securing funding and guiding the company's operations. A well-developed business plan can help designers understand the market for their product and how they can best compete in that market.

5. The final step in the process of creating a new product is to launch the product and monitor its performance. This involves marketing the product to the target market and tracking sales and customer feedback. Launching a new product can be a challenging task, but it is essential for ensuring that the product reaches its intended audience and that the company can learn from customer feedback to make improvements.

Descendants Of John Williams Of Culpeper, Virginia

Three brothers, James, John and Otho emigrated together about the year 1698 and landed at the mouth of the Rappahannock River. They ascended the river and when they reached the falls where Fredericksburg, Va. is now located, they separated. John settled in Culpeper, Va. The brothers were grandsons of Pierre Williams of London, Barrister at Law and Author of Reports of Decisions in the English Courts of his day. Descendants of these brothers are scattered throughout the south and other parts of the country.
